NO HAVEN OF REFUGE

Imagine a large business firm doing a statewide business in Washington, dealing in a commodity that directly or indirectly affects every individual in that state. Suppose the company pays the head of the firm $10,000 a year—not a bad salary—but in return for it expects the following services:

To act as a field representative, keeping personally in touch with the firm's customers all over the state, in every county. To be on hand in the home office all the time to greet important customers or groups that might drop in there.

To attempt to build up a powerful lobby among members of the State Legislature in order to secure friendly legislation. To avoid the slightest suspicion that the firm ever pays any attention to politics.

To conduct the firm on an efficient, business-like basis. To do it with only a skeleton staff of administrative workers.

To build up the personnel of the productive part of the firm by securing outstanding men from all parts of the country. To try to keep these men while paying lower salaries than other similar firms, and rarely granting promotion.

To turn out a product that is strictly up to date. To do it with out-of-date equipment and a factory crowded to the point of inefficiency.

To follow closely any suggestions put forth by the financial backers of the firm, regardless of how inadequately informed they may be about the technique of this particular business. To be held responsible, nevertheless, for the products turned out.

To accept any kind of raw material that is offered for processing. To take the blame for any inferior products that result.

The business firm described here is of course, the State University. The problems outlined are a few of the dilemmas faced by a university president. He is up against problems that would make many times a higher salaried business executive tear his hair and throw up his hands in despair.

The job is, to say the least, no haven of refuge. — From the Washington Alumnus.

A BIG JOB FOR COLLEGE ALUMNI

Graduates of America's colleges and universities are facing a grave responsibility—the task of re-selling the general public on the value of higher education in a democracy.

Time was when young people went to college largely to gain the pleasures of intellectual development. The depression killed that; they come now to learn how to make a living.

Time was when a college professor was universally respected as a man of knowledge and judgment. Now the public is likely to suspect him, per se, of being a Red or at least a brain truster at heart.

A few years ago research was regarded as opening the way to a new world of efficiency and happiness; now research, though capturing the interest of the public, is likely to be regarded as an unnecessary frill for an educational plant unless there is an immediate dollars and cents application.

Not so long ago, the people of most states prided themselves in putting educational opportunities for youth ahead of nearly everything else on the budget; now the demands for social security take first place and college budgets are slashed or are allowed to remain static in the face of rising enrollments. Social security is being emphasized; there is danger of losing sight of the democratic goal, education for individual security.

College alumni ought to do something about this. They ought to impress upon the public the fact that severe economy in education damages the best machinery our civilization has devised for training competent leadership for democracy, and for extending the boundaries of knowledge — knowledge that is desperately needed to solve our social and economic problems.

College alumni ought to keep pounding home the fact that democracy, from the time of the Greeks, has been based on an educated leadership.

Walter Lippman, one of the keenest observers of the current scene, has concluded that the people of the United States are ceasing to be free because they are no longer being educated in the arts of free men. He believes that we have progressed so rapidly in recent years that we have become engrossed in economic problems and have dropped an iron curtain between ourselves and the sources from which our civilization comes. He believes that the onset of barbarism must be met not only by programs of rearmament, but by another revival of learning.

Editor's note: During the coming year it shall be the purpose of this column to present interesting and appropriate items from alumni magazines of other colleges and universities. It is refreshing to know that many other associations such as ours are working towards the same goal and facing the same problems. An insight into their experiences and ideas should be of considerable interest if not actually pointing us at times to roads which will lead us to a more vital alumni association.

College alumni ought to impress upon the public the connection between education in the arts of free men, and the maintenance of democracy. They ought to point out to the taxpayers and the philanthropists of America that higher education is the only lasting weapon against barbarism abroad, and against the loss of freedom and opportunity at home.

It is not enough for alumni to work enthusiastically a few days a year to raise funds for their own colleges; they have a patriotic responsibility to promote higher education in general. — From the University Oklahoma Sooner's Magazine.

New Cover By Well Known Grad

We are indebted to Clayton Lupton, '36, artist at the Liberal Engraving Company, for the fine work in creating the cover page of this issue. For some time we have hoped to have something original and outstanding which would set the Puget Sound Alumnus apart from just another publication. We feel that now we have that very thing, thanks to Mr. Lupton.

ART ASSOCIATION PLANS GREATER YEAR

The Tacoma Art Association opens its regular schedule of exhibitions on October 15, continuing its plan of bringing monthly exhibits to the College galleries in Jones Hall. As a result of the recent Carnegie grant to the Fine Arts division, an additional studio gallery has been added which makes it possible to have more space for the shows. Announcement of the exhibition for the first month will be made shortly, which will include some of the more important American painters. The addition of 48 reproductions has been made to the Carnegie collection of prints, which will make it possible to carry out a rather extensive educational project through the Tacoma Art Association and the College Art Department. With the addition of Mr. Robert Drummond to the staff of the Art Department, we feel that we are on the way to an extremely active season.

By PAUL LANTZ, '40

When CPS plays Willamette in the annual Homecoming game, October 27, alums will see a Logger outfit which has everything but size. Our line averages only 183 pounds and the 165 pound backfield is sparked by tap dancing Bob Ramsey who tips the scales at 135 with an overcoat on.

But Coach Leo Frank is offering no alibis and asking for no sympathy. In his quiet, efficient way, he's been building a ball club which makes up in fight what it lacks in weight.

This was clearly indicated in that first pre-conference game with E. W. C. E. Cheney boasts a 207 pound line and a backfield composed of graduates of leading university teams. It was another case of David versus Goliath. Goliath won by three touchdowns but not until the Loggers had held them to a scoreless first half.

Only ten lettermen returned to the ranks this fall but there is some promising new material. Ed Buesko, Jim Martin, and Bob Zile of Tacoma, and Bert McLaughlin of Kirkland have already won places on the starting lineup. Martin is a hard hitting fullback, weighs 180 pounds and received his training with Stadium high school's mythical state champions. Ed Buesko, a tackle, hails from the same school. Bert

Coach Leo J. Frank

McLaughlin is the younger brother of Bill McLaughlin, last year's star quarterback, who is recuperating from an appendicitis operation. The largest man on the team is 225 pound Bob Zile who is developing into a powerhouse at tackle. A graduate of Valley high school, he has been improving with every practice and bears watching.

Among other newcomers is Bob Parker, son of Harry Parker of Corvallis, Oregon, who played quarterback for the Maroon and White in those days when McNeil and Hubbard were doing the coaching. Young Hubbard is turning out for end and will probably see plenty of action in the future.

Swivel-hipped Bill Madden is again carrying the ball at half. The Buckley Bomber was in the thick of it every minute last year and his experience is very, very welcome on a squad which is two-thirds new.

Unfortunately, this year's schedule permits but two home games. On October 19, we play Whitworth in the Tacoma stadium and the homecoming tussle with Willamette is slated for the following week-end. Following is the complete remaining schedule:

Oct. 13—Pacific University at Forest Grove (night).

Oct. 19—Whitworth at Tacoma (night).

Oct. 27—Willamette at Tacoma (night). (Homecoming).

Nov. 4—Central Washington at Ellensburg.

Nov. 11—Linfield at McMinnville.

Loggers Beat Missionaries with Score of 20 - 7

Walla Walla, Oct. 6—Late Friday a jubilant crew of Loggers entrained for home with the scalps of the Whitman Missionaries neatly packed away for another year. The Loggers scored twice in the second half to break a 7-7 half-time tie. Outstanding in the backfield for CPS were Madden and Martin while McNeely, Buseko, and Maycumber were a tower of strength

Although there are still some weak spots to work on, Coach Frank stated that, barring injuries, the team will be in high gear for the big game with Willamette.

The Whitman win opened the Logger conference schedule. Remaining conference games are with Pacific U., Oct. 13; Willamette, Oct. 27; and Linfield, Nov. 11.

Assistant Coach Grant

Grant Asks Alumni Help

This year the college and city seem to be solidly behind the team, more than usual. The morale of the players is also excellent. But this is not quite enough to insure complete success.

"We coaches don't get gray haired training teams," Assistant Lou Grant remarked recently. "Our principal worry is in getting new material."

CPS needs heavier players and more of them. That is where the alumni can help. Scout your neighborhood high school games and try to line up the good material. A word in the right place can do wonders.

The Alumni Association is each year becoming more active and is becoming more self-reliant in carrying out its activities "under its own power." The "Alumnus" has been published regularly for five years, and during this, its sixth year, it will go out in a style and size which will be slightly more expensive than before, but the magazine will have a substantial part of the expenses borne by the advertising secured.

Besides costs connected with the publication of the Alumnus, there are many other items of alumni expense such as postage, letterhead, files, forums, and incidental supplies. Most of these operating expenses of the alumni office are being paid by the College. By paying regular dues in the Alumni Association, you can become an ACTIVE member of the Association and can help the CPS Alumni Association to become a full-fledged "adult"—independent in carrying out and in paying for its own activities.

When the alumni of CPS are able to relieve the College of the burden of sponsoring the Alumni Association and its publication, the College will have that money available for use elsewhere. This must be done as rapidly as possible because of the many problems facing CPS today.

One of these problems is our library, which has expanded to the limit of present facilities. It now is gradually filling its none too plentiful study space with an annual increase of approximately 4,000 new books.

Another vexing problem is that of the Conservatory of Music. An excellent faculty is housed in a building which is an eye-sore and fire-trap on the campus. With walls which act more as conductors than as insulators, it is extremely difficult for more than one group to work in the building at one time.

Perhaps the most puzzling problem of all is one of very recent origin. In February of this year the College dedicated its first residence hall for women. By the opening of school this September it was already filled to capacity. These girls who have filled the hall this year are nearly all going to stay the full four years. Must the College wait for two or three years before it can again accept out-of-town girls who wish to stay in a women's residence hall? Or can it go ahead from this excellent start?

What can we do about these things? We can make our Alumni Association financially independent as rapidly as possible, and that by paying our annual membership dues. Our own Alumni Finance Committee has decided on $3.00 as a standard for annual dues. More or less, according to one's own ability, will be equally acceptable. The important thing is "everybody doing his share." The "ball's rolling." Let's keep it rolling.

College Receives Carnegie Grant

Evidence of the high esteem in which the College of Puget Sound is held by the Carnegie Corporation, of New York, is the recent grant of $35,000 for production in the fine arts. This money, to be spent in four installments, has been divided among the departments of the fine arts division and the library. The money has provided assistants in the art and dramatic departments and the library and made possible the establishment of a department of public school music in the conservatory.

This indication of the interest of the Carnegie Corporation in the College of Puget Sound, is one of the most heartening of recent developments. It means that men of money are keeping an eye on the work being done by an outstanding privately endowed school, with a particular interest in the fine arts.

It is the hope of President Todd that the work started this September will produce results that will justify a further grant for fine arts production.

Demands of increased registration and opportunities for broader service brought several new members into the College of Puget Sound staff family this year.

Heading the list is Dr. Paul B. Means, who comes from the Orient and a period of study in Europe. He holds degrees from Yale, Oxford and Columbia and has studied in Germany. Before going to the Orient he was professor of philosophy at Berea college in Kentucky. He was principal of the Methodist Boys' school at Medan, Sumatra, and publisher of the official organ of the Methodist denomination at Singapore. He is taking work in the English department and will be assistant to President Todd in the field, a post created to further the financial prospects of the college.

In the art department Robert L. Drummond comes with credentials from Harvard and Columbia and the Massachusetts State College and the School of Art, as assistant to Director Melvin H. Kohler.

Assisting Miss Martha Pearl Jones is Miss Lucile Meredith. She will have charge of the speech work, leaving Miss Jones more time to devote to dramatics, a long need at the college.

Miss Susan M. Watt and Miss Helen H. Lewis are new assistants in the library. Miss Watt obtained her degrees at Western college and the University of Chicago. She also has served as librarian at the University of Idaho. Miss Lewis is a graduate of the University of Washington library school.

E. T. Short, a newspaper man of long and varied experience in the publishing field, now columnist and music editor of The Tacoma Times, is assigned to the journalism classes formerly taught by Douglas Rugh, now on a year's leave of absence. He also is associated with the college publications in an advisory capacity and will direct the college publicity.

Another new figure in the faculty family is Paul R. Fossum, who brings credentials from John Hopkins University and Concordia college. He is the answer to the long deferred hope of Prof. Battin for an assistant in the department of business administration.

These new members of the faculty will be among those who will greet you at homecoming time.

Music Department . . .

The Conservatory of Music has been enlarged, in the number of faculty members, as well as in the number of courses which are available. For the first time in the history of the college, the conservatory offers a complete course in Public School Music, brought about by the gift of the Carnegie Corporation.

Louis G. Wersen, M. A., Supervisor of Music in the Tacoma Public Schools, has been secured to be in charge of the new curriculum. He will teach the classes in Public School Music Methods, supervise the practice teaching in the public schools, and continue as conductor of the college band. It is most fortunate that an arrangement has been made with the officials of the Tacoma Public Schools which enables Mr. Wersen to do this teaching and be in charge of the public school music majors in their preparation for teaching positions in the public schools.

Erich Koker, B. F. A., violinist, has been put in charge of the string department and is developing a new organization. This group is a String Ensemble and has a membership of 20. Their first concert was given very successfully last spring.

Lena Sanders Running has been added to the voice department as an assistant. Mrs. Running was a pupil of John Paul Bennett for three years, and later spent a year in New York City studying with Dr. Douglas Stanley, voice scientist.

In our projected plans for the coming year, great interest has been shown in the band. Thirty students have signed for the organization and it is hoped that next year, or possibly this spring, this organization will be able to tour and in this way help the Adelphian Choral Society to represent the College of Puget Sound throughout the state.

A new chorus, the Puget Sound Singers, has started rehearsals. No tryouts are held for this group, which will number between 80 and 100. Short cantatas and oratorios are to be sung, the first of which will be "Hear Our Prayer" by Mendelssohn, with Mrs. Running as the soloist and John Paul Bennett conducting.

College Gets Radio Hour

Faculty Sponsored Programs to Start Immediately

Beginning October 20, CPS will be on the air regularly every Friday from 11:30 to 12 noon over station KMO. This is a real step forward in an effort to make use of the fine radio facilities offered the college here in Tacoma.

These programs will be broadcast direct from Jones Hall auditorium, from where a direct wire connection with KMO has been established through the courtesy of Mr. Wallace MacPherson of the Federal Bakeries. Moreover the student body and administration are purchasing a first class "mike" and amplifying equipment.

At least one program a month will be a broadcast of the student assembly (familiarily known as chapel). The remaining programs will consist of music, dramatics, panel discussions, news commentaries, etc. President Todd has appointed a faculty radio committee to be responsible for arranging the programs. The committee is composed of Professors Schafer, Williston, Jones and Bennett. Our hats are off to KMO for their willing cooperation and to Professor Schafer for his untiring efforts to get CPS on the air regularly. Tune in to KMO at 11:30 on Fridays.

"The Cat and The Canary" To Be Homecoming Presentation

By Bill Melton, '42

"The Cat and the Canary," chosen as the annual Homecoming play, is to be presented to play-going Tacomans and CPS alumni October 26. It promises to be one of the most eerie and thrilling productions offered by the dramatics department in many years. With its creeping monsters, stolen necklaces and screaming heroines, it is sure to hold Homecoming audiences spell-bound 'til the final curtain.

First produced on the New York stage some years ago and since then made into a prize-winning movie, "The Cat and the Canary" takes its place as one of the best murder mysteries ever written.

Miss Martha Pearl Jones, now in her tenth successful year of directing CPS plays, announces the following cast:

Roger Crosby, Wilbur Baising-er, '41; "Mammy" Pleasant, Mildred McKenzie, '41; Paul Jones, Richard McKnight, '40; Harry Blythe, Garth Dickens, '40; Charlie Wilder, Richard Sloat, '40; Annabelle West, Annabel Miller, '41; Susan, Florence Burd, '42; Cicily, June Peele, '40; Hendricks, Charles Swanson, '42; Patterson, Ernest Meassler, '43.

The play has to do with a group of heirs assembling 20 years after an eccentric old man's death, for the reading of his will. The setting is in a dark and spooky old mansion, and as the lawyer reads the will, those assembled discover the heiress to be beautiful Annabelle West. From then on, weird things begin to happen to her in an attempt to drive her insane, because of a stipulation in the will that if she should be declared insane the estate would go to the next heir. The climax, in which the villain is unmasked and the mystery is solved, will leave Homecoming audiences limp and thrilled.

OTHER FEATURES

A novel stunt in the form of a curtain-raiser put on by alumni will be offered. This will be a short one-act play entitled "Food" and may well be described as a "rank mellerdramer." It deals with the all too current topic of the rising price of food during the present war situation.

Clayton Lupton, '36, an artist at Liberal Engraving Company, and one-time dramatics manager at CPS, will take a humorous role in this melodrama-farce, and Ruth Arwood Heggerness, who was prominent in dramatics at CPS, will play the feminine lead. Chuck Zittel, student body president at the College in '36, and now with the Tacoma Police force, will enact the role of "an officer of the food trust." The alumni curtain raiser will begin at 8:00 o'clock.

Of interest to followers of the Campus Playcrafters are the plans for the coming '39-'40 play season. For the first semester, Neil Richardson, dramatics manager, announces three three-act plays. The first is the Homecoming play "The Cat and the Canary." The second will be a freshman-sophomore play to be presented some time in November. The third for the fall semester is an extremely popular religious play, "The Servant In the House," by Charles Ran Kennedy. This drama was first presented to college audiences in 1932 and this year will go on in December. Some time early in the first semester a group of three one-act plays will be offered. These will later be given at the Masonic-Eastern Star annual turkey dinner in November.

The spring semester will find another all-college play for Tacoma audiences. Also the annual freshman play will entertain CPS students in chapel period. Throughout the season numerous workshop plays put on by student directors will see the footlights.

The various high schools of the state will be the guests of CPS on two occasions this year. The first will be the annual one-act play contest where the schools vie for first honors with their productions. The second occasion will be the sophomore-freshman play.
